When Dora's trunk had been searched by Dr. Locher, Messra Cowan, Hall and Velay nothing was found that showed she owned the pistol. There was no amunition, none of the tools used to care for the weapon, nothing to indicate that the wronged girl had administered justice with her own hand. In view of the evidence Tax Hirman said that the verdict was not justified. The coroner, who had worked hard on the case, was unsatisfied, and a reporter on the jury felt that a point had been stretched.

In view of the facts unearthed by Tax Hirman yesterday it seems that Dora went to Billy's room on Monday night for the express purpose of avenging her honor with his life. Whether she intended to suicide will never be known. The chances are she did not. Else why should she have been partly dressed. Probably she visited Gray with the hopes of inducing him to right the wrong done her and to lake her west with him. Gray refused. When Dora's trunk had been searched take her west with him. Gray refused.

Found the Bullets.

These statements are easily verified. Yesterday afternoon Henry Velzy, father of Dora, came up from Allandale and with Dr. Locher made a thorough examination of the dead girl's trunk. Every article of clothing was taken out piece by piece and examined. Some 200 letters were read with the hope that they might throw some light on the crime. The majority of them were from her mother and sisters; half a dozen were from Slayter. Down in one corner of the trunk was found about forty pairs of stockings. Some rolled up, others had never been worn. It was a pair that had been rolled up which un-raveled the mystery. Dr. Locher picked up a black silk, rolled very heavy. He smiled as he unrolled the stockings. There lay a box of cartridges, 32-calibre, short. Taking of the cover, he saw that a bit of rag had been pushed into a space made by the extraction of some cartridges. There were forty-five remaining. Dora used a five-chambered built-dog revolver. A comparison of the cartridge found in the gun and those discovered in the trunk showed them to be identical. "U. M. Co., 32 S. & W.," was stamped on the rim of every one.

That murder had been long in the gris heart was demonstrated by the dirt about the leaden bullet of the cartridge found in the revolver. The others

Another thing, Dora Velzy was ambi-destrous. Her father says so. This will account for the apparently conflict-ing testimony that she was sinisterhanded and could not have committed the crime, as the revolver had been fired when held in the right hand.

CHARLES PAUL ARRESTED.

After a desperate fight in a saloon at the corner of Front and Pearl streets, at 6 o'clock last evening. Officer Mooney placed Charles Paul under arrest for attempting to criminally assault Mrs. O. H. Shaver of No. 205 Ottawa street. Paul, who is a wood carver in the Phoenix Furniture company's factory, has been boarding at Mr. Shaver's house for the past few months. Yesterday he did not work, and came home in the afternoon somewhat under the influence of liquor. Mrs. Shaver was alone in the house, and Paul began to act strangely, and made an indecent proposal to her. She resented the insult. When Paul attempted to seize her she ran up stairs and locked herself in her room. Paul stormed the door for a time, and finding he could not get in sat down to a regular siege. At 4 o'clock Mr. Shaver's little girl arrived home from school and the mother called out of the window to her torun to Mr. Shaver's livery stable and tell him to come to the house as quickly as possible. The little girl had scarcely disappeared when Mrs. Shaver heard a door open and shut supposing that Paul had left the house she went down stairs only to find him there. A desperate fight followed in which the tables and chairs were overturned. At last unable to combat the great strength of the man longer Mrs. Shaver was forced into a closet and thrown to the floor. At this stage of affairs Mr. Shaver appeared on the scene and gave Paul a terrible thrush. affairs Mr. Shaver appeared on the scene and gave Paul a terrible thrushing. A warrant was at once sworn out and Paul was arrested as stated. At the station he appeared to be very drunk and could not talk.

BIG SALES TO RULE.

SOME OF THEIR REASONS.

pring and Will Have to Stock Up to July-New Bayers.

If the Grand Rapids furniture men are truthful—and their veracity is yet to be impugned—the July sales will be the largest the city has ever known and will approximate $2,000,000.

Every factory in the city is stocking up and the visiting buyers will be dazzled by some of the most artistic furniture that ever left the hand of the cabinet maker. Some of the sideboards and bed room suites that have recently been turned out are gems in wood. A grotesque specimen of humanity who registered from Cincinnati once patronizingly remarked that Grand Rapids was a good bed-room suite town; but it couldn't make anything else. Being from Cincinnati, he could hardly be expected to know any better. Grand Rapids will have some of the most beautiful cheffoniers, book cases, chairs and desks ever made, on exhibition next month, and some of the upholstered work shown will be a revelation to any man that obtained even a portion of his ideas about furniture from the overgrown river town on the Ohio. Cincinnati obtained its conceptions of art in furniture during the days when most of the inhabitants were engaged in the hog sticking industry, and it has never been able to outgrow them.

Some of the Reasons.

Some of the Reasons. There are several reasons why the coming season promises to be the best one Grand Rapids has ever had. In the first place comparatively little furniture was sold last spring. Most of the dealers were already stocked up and they bought simply to fill out broken lots. The condition of the market was stuffy to say the least, and nobody cared to run any chances with a new stock. The run any chances with a new stock. The Chicago people bought furniture freely, but they constitute only a small percentage of the Grand Rapids trade. What they bought was largely world's fair furniture. It was purchased for temporary use and not for beauty. The rest of the country did not buy any rest of the country did not buy any furniture at all. It expected to visit Chicago relatives or sleep in world's fair hotels; hence it had no use for anything of its own.

But in the fall it will be different. But in the fall it will be different. All the eastern people who have been to the fair will require something new when they begin housekeeping again in the fail. Their bank accounts will have recovered partially from their Chicagoesque summer condition and they'll have more money to put into home furnishings. At least this is the opinion of the castern dealers. They expect to sell lots of goods next September and Octo-ber. They have little stock left over. All the leading dealers will visit Grand Rapids next month and make big pur-

But there are other reasons why the local manufacturers expect to do business with a big augur. Hundreds of world's fair tourists are going to run up here on their way home or their way north. They'll all inspect the big tories and warehouses. Many of the visitors will be women. A woman can't resist an artistic piece of furniture any more than she can a new hat or a be-coming bit of lace. In the aggregate they may be depended upon to invest several thousand of their husband's good dollars in Grand Rapids wooden

But better and far more profitable than these will be the eastern buyers, who will be making their first trip to this city. All of them who visit the fair will run over, and the furniture dealer the sights usually goes home with half a carload of furniture. Will H. Boyns of the Oriel Cabinet company stated last night that he knew of six wealthy eastern dealers who would visit Grand Rapids next month for the first time. But six will be only a small pro-portion of them. There will be several times that many new ones from the west and south, and if the local manufacturer does not reap a harvest of quick sales and small profits it will be his own fault.

Mr. Limbert's Views.

Charles P. Limbert was confident last night that the July sales would exceed anything the sellers had ever dreamed

Many of them are making active prepar-Many of them are making active preparations to be "wid us" and assist in surrounding the golden plum. Even Rockford, Illinois, is coming, and Rockford has made pretensions of being a furniture center in itself. One firm from that little burg has rented five floors of the Kortlander & Murphy block.

Benson Lossing, L. L. D., the distinguished historian, has said that Miss Holley, more familiarly known to a loving public as Samantha, Josiah Allen's Wife, is a wise and efficient reformer, an acute and moral philosopher, a genuine humorist, and a most shillful limner of special phrases of nocial life everywhere to be seen. Her "epsodian" sermons are dramatic and incisive; her philosophy is self demonstrative and her humor always has beneficence and not mere amusement as its prime motive. Her book, "Samantha at Saratoga," is genial and not so keenly satirical that like Hervantes who set all Europe a laughing the temfooleries of chivalry out of existence; like Homes who, by a patriotic little poem, saved the frigate Constitution from destructior; like Whittier who dismissed from our statute books a barburous law by the burning words of his "Prisoner for Debt;" like Mirs Stowe who pierced the heart of the institution of sinvery by her pon; Miss Holley's books are doing in a quiet way a great work for the promotion of needed social reforms. I know of no volume more healthful for perusal by the old and the young, the learned and the unlearned.

Bishop J. P. Newman has written as follows of that great book, "Samantha at Saratoga" as an antidote for the blues, a cure-all for any kind of mental woe, a recreation from intellectual taxation, a provocation for wholesale laughter and an inspiration to Godliness. It is the bitterest satire sugar-coated with the sweetness of exhilarating fun; it is irony laughing at fashionable folly; it is exalted wit with scalpel in one hand and the Baim of Gilead in the other. Her personality is intense, her genius immense, her art perfect. She stands alone in her chosen sphere without a rival.
